About the Davie County Local Interagency Coordinating Council (LICC)

The Identified Primary Goal of the Local Interagency Coordinating Council (LICC) is the comprehensive coordination of services of children in the county with special needs birth through five years of age. The total effort of the Council is intended to support that goal through continuous planning, collaboration, and problem solving.

The council recognizes the unique needs of families and their young children who have special needs. Therefore, it believes that the early intervention process should be comprehensive, interdisciplinary, and designed specifically to meet physical, developmental, emotional, and social needs. Teamwork and collaboration are essential components of the entire process, including identification, intervention, and ongoing support.

The intent of all early intervention for young children is to 1) encourage patterns of normal development, 2) prevent a condition from becoming more debilitating, and 3) decrease stress on the family. It is therefore the belief of the Council that all intervention efforts should reflect children with the framework of the family. The identification and intervention process views inclusion of the family as an important component.

The Council endorses the interdisciplinary team approach to intervention as it encourages the collaborative process among professionals and parents who work with the child. Although individual team members always bring specific discipline knowledge to the group, the sharing process with parents and other team members develops the ability to work with the whole child.

The statement of beliefs is intended to reflect the philosophical and practical position of the Council. The Council accepts the responsibility as the advisory body of coordinating critical services for young children with special needs in Davie County as long as the need prevails.
